The conference organized yesterday at a business session following the opening sacramental service conducted by Bishop William F. McDowell. Officers were elected and committees appointed. FARMERS SUGGESTED FACTS FOR CENSUS

Census Director Durand Invites Practical Co-operation of the Rural Residents.

At the request of the Census Bureau at Washington the Gazette publishes the following invitation to Rock county farmers to offer suggestions which may be of value to the census enumerators in their work. The notification sent out by the Bureau having this work in charge, is as follows: "The farmers of the United States are naturally very much interested in the census of agriculture and farms that will be taken April 15, 1910, as one of the subjects to be covered by the 'Thirteenth Decennial Census.' Many are showing the greatest interest in the census. The Bureau for the purpose of making comments upon census information regarding agriculture as presented in the past. The director of the census welcomes all such suggestions and gives them careful consideration, as he is anxious to have the results of the coming census correspond as nearly as may be to the desires of the people most interested.

"In addition to studying carefully these suggestions, the director has on his own initiative requested certain professors of economics and agriculture of the country, and other persons who have specialized in agricultural matters, to come to Washington for a short time for the purpose of studying carefully and criticizing plans now under way. Especially is it desired to obtain their opinion relative to the questions to be asked and their form, as the results to be obtained will largely depend upon the character of the schedule and the manner in which the questions are propounded. These suggestions, coming from outside experts, are being given the greatest consideration and it is believed that in consequence of this preliminary study more valuable and accurate data will be obtained than could otherwise be secured. After these special students and experts have made their preliminary studies, formal conferences are held in the office in which the whole matter of the character of the schedule and the best methods of securing the information are thoroughly going over. The department is also seeking to secure the advice and cooperation, as far as possible, of the officers and experts of the Department of Agriculture, of the state agricultural colleges, farmers' societies and like organizations."

FINE PROGRAM TODAY AT EVANSVILLE FAIR

Baseball Game Between Belleville and Brooklyn This Morning And Judging of Horses.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Wis., Sept. 2.—The crowds at the fair today were even larger than those of yesterday and the outlook is that it will be a grand success.

The baseball game this morning at the fair grounds between Belleville and Brooklyn resulted in the defeat of the latter nine by the score of 11 to 8. Brooklyn was severely handicapped by the loss of their pitcher, Carlous, who failed to put in an appearance. The game was substituted and pitched good ball. Errors were made by both sides but the batting of Belleville secured. Gardner's hitting was a feature of the game although both sides hit the ball hard. Rice was in the box for Belleville, with Davis as backstop and Carlous, Gardner and Broughton were the batteries for Brooklyn.

Judging of the horses took place this morning in front of the grand stand, and, in the opinion of the judges, the horses were unusually fine. The exhibit of livestock is attracting a good deal of attention. Of cattle there are 102 entries; the number of sheep is 139, and of hogs, 124. The dining tent was well filled at the noon hour today, and the rest tent, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., is well patronized. The Evansville band is dispensing music for the day.

Attractions for Tomorrow.

In the morning there will be a floral parade of baby carriages at ten o'clock and a baseball game between the Chicago Union Giants and the Footville White Sox.

Good races will occupy the greater part of the time in the afternoon with three special attractions between the races in front of the grand stand.

Yesterday's Events.

The second day of the fair opened with a large crowd in attendance and never before has such a keen interest been shown in the races and the general opinion is that they are far better than they were last year. Yesterday's races resulted as follows:

The Secret of Baking Good Bread

THE secret of delicious bread lies in the oven.

The bread that you make at home is baked in a dry kitchen stove. Ours is baked in live steam.

Our ovens are made tight so that steam rising from the bread is retained in the ovens.

The bread is first placed in a large steam proofing box which aids in the rising and retaining of the natural moisture in the bread and gives it a delightful flavor all its own.

Then other steam superheated to 340 degrees is forced in under terrific pressure.

The result is marvelous; every particle of natural moisture is baked right into the loaf.

That's what makes Yankee bread so delicious. Order a loaf tomorrow from your grocer or get one from our wagons which pass your homes each day.

The price per loaf is 5c, although it is worth more because it is larger and three times as good as any other bread.

THE FROZEN NORTH
Dr. Frederick A. Cook of Brooklyn, New York, alone and unaided by any white companion, has accomplished what four hundred years of toil and labor at the cost of thousands of dollars and the loss of hundreds of lives failed to do. He has discovered the North Pole. He has planted the Stars and Stripes on the point farthest north. He is now returning from his wonderful journey which means much to the world, both scientific and otherwise, as he went quietly and alone. Saturday he lands in Copenhagen and then will tell the story of his wonderful journey into the great frozen unknown.

LIMITS OF TAXATION
Assessors are now abroad in the land. In a New Jersey town a local board has marked up the Standard Oil company's property several millions of dollars, resulting in a contest for the revision of valuations. In Boston they are trying to save themselves from raising the rate of city taxes by resort to higher valuations of the personal property of more wealthy citizens. Certain it is that neither there nor anywhere else in or about large cities is personally bearing its equitable share of the burden.
But the difficulty has always been to get statements of true values from owners of property. Failing in this, assessors make their own guesses. Then follows swearing out. The custom is never to "swear up" if possible, always swear down, and preferably to swear the entire valuation off the list. The marvel of the American tax assessors' lists is the poverty of the rich in personal possessions.
Probably no part of the operation of fiscal machinery uncovers the moral quality of American citizenship to such barefaced evasion as this very matter of the relation of property-owners to government through the assessment of personality. It is generally recognized that while the personal property tax is a good one for rural and small town communities, it is of diminishing value in large municipal districts where that class of property takes the comparatively intangible form of securities.
With many authorities it is a serious question as to whether personal property assessments should not be abandoned altogether on this account. There is some justice in the claim that assessments of corporations in which individuals hold personal investment really result in the owner of such property contributing to the public revenue. As a question of administration, it is probably much easier to place the burden where it belongs by taxing the corporations, than by requiring the submission of a personal schedule. In some states, banks and other corporations are required to submit the list of their stockholders with their holdings on which the state authorities put a valuation determined by the market record of a given date, or an average for a period.

Corporations and individuals as taxable units now occupy very different positions compared with a decade or two ago. Gradually the burden has come to be shifted to corporations to an extent that shows clearly enough the failure of taxing authorities to recognize the limits of capacity to pay.

Yet some way should be found by which every individual, regardless of his relations to corporations and simply in his capacity as an individual citizen, may not wholly escape pecuniary contribution to the needs of government. May that not after all be one of the main advantages of the income tax?

The straw hat, despite any official edicts, is supposed to be out of date, but just the same it is a comfortable sort of remembrance to have had one anyway.

UNCLE WALT.
THE POET PHILOSOPHER
By WALT MASON
(Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams.)
I'm so sorry for Harry, so woefully tried! The sweet boon of freedom to him is denied; in gloomy asylums he's destined to dwell, to eat in a dungeon and sleep in a cell; removed from the world, with its clamor and strife, to mix with the flossam and jetsam of life. I haven't the gall, or I haven't the guile, to ask this poor fellow to Cheer Up and Smile; I haven't the conscience to go to his cell, and murmur: "Don't Worry, and All Will Be Well!" I'd rather approach him and whisper: "Old Sport, when next they are testing your brains in the court, be wary and cautious and wise as an owl; if you labor too much, you're out on a foul. You brought yourself back to your present distress, by saying you wanted to write for the press. Before that announcement your chances were great; by making it public you sealed your own fate; 'to the cops,' said the judge, 'I must give you in charge, you're surely too bitty to wander at large!'"

Exception to General Rule.
Lovell says: "The very gentlest and hardest of hearts has some musical string in it," yet we are told that Dr. Johnson had no love of music, and that upon being told that a certain piece of music was very difficult, he expressed regret that it was not impossible. But Dr. Johnson was a human contradiction.

A Strong Guaranty.
"Are you sure those eggs are fresh?" asked the woman, eyeing them suspiciously. "Yes, ma'am," replied the grocer, with complacency; "I guarantee those eggs. If any of them aren't good, I'll make 'em good!"—Lippincott's.

COLORED MAN WAS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Charles Traylor, Now Behind Bars, Is Alleged to Have Forged Check.

Charles Traylor, a negro with a "green" forehead and of unimpressive appearance, generally, was captured by the police officers last evening and is in the lock-up pending a decision as to what sort of an action shall be commenced against him. It is alleged that the prisoner tried hard yesterday to steal a horse from the farm of Edward Parker in the town of La Prairie and subsequently came to the city and made an effort to get a check for $25.00 on an Oaklawn bank, bearing the supposedly forged endorsement of a payee named Charles Traylor, cashed at the grocery store of James H. Sheldon & Son, 446 Caroline street.

The signature on the back of the check was executed with such a crude penmanship that the storekeeper at once became suspicious and telephoned the police authorities as soon as he had refused to advance the money and had gotten rid of the colored man.

To give a full description of the colored individual and it corresponded to a dot with one which had been sent to headquarters from the Parker farm early in the afternoon. Acting Chief of Police John Brown instructed the patrolmen to be on the lookout and after himself getting out on the trail, espied the stranger on Main street and followed him to and through the railroad yards, finally driving him into Officer Thomas Morrissey's territory. The latter nabbed the suspect as he was attempting to board a freight train.

When the fellow was searched at the station, the $25 check was found on his person. It was dated August 7, 1909, and purported to be drawn by J. H. Harnsman & Sons Co. of Oaklawn, contractors of public works, per William Harnsman, secretary and treasurer, on The Old National Bank of Oaklawn in favor of Charles Traylor, and "Second National Bank of Illinois" had originally been stamped on the face of the check.

The check was partially obliterated by the newer designation. When put in the "sawed box" Traylor insisted that he had found the check on the streets of Janesville, admitted having tried to get it cashed, but would not confess to having forged the endorsement.

The episode at the Parker farm took place yesterday morning. Mrs. Parker, who was in the house at the time, happened to notice a negro of singular appearance passing by the place about eight o'clock. A few moments after she had lost sight of him her attention was attracted by the sounds of a horse stamping on the barn floor. She went out to make an investigation and as she approached the barn she saw the colored man leading a horse out by the bridle. Startled by her entry, the intruder let go of the bridle and fled in a southerly direction. Her son, who also was a witness of what transpired, came to Janesville with his father this morning and identified the prisoner as the man who tried to make away with the horse. Traylor does not deny that he was in the vicinity of the Parker farm yesterday but insists that he was just indulging his natural love for horses and looking the animal over. District Attorney Fisher was out of the city this morning and up to noon no decision had been reached as to what form the prosecution should take. A preliminary inquiry regarding the check may be made at Oaklawn and Beloit.

Upon investigation it was found that the check in the negro's possession had been crudely falsified from the original amount—$25.00—to $25.80. The letters "8" and the word "nine" had been added as well as the figure "8". The difference in handwriting as well as the difference in the color of the ink used could be distinguished. Whether or not this transformation was the handiwork of Traylor can not be determined as he steadfastly asserts under examination that he found the check in Janesville.

Acting Chief John Brown this afternoon got into communication with the authorities at Beloit and requested them to look up Traylor's record. Traylor claims to know the present proprietor of the Grand Hotel barber shop who recently lived in Beloit and for whom he claims to have worked for two weeks, later going to work on the streets.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

WORK—something one has to do, hates to do, and hurries through. That's the all too common definition.

WORK—the employment of one's abilities in doing the things one is best fitted to do—standing equal with LOVE as one of the two best things in life.

That is the definition that ought to be.

I want the high school and college graduates who are planning or entering upon their work in life, at this season of the year, to make the second their definition.

If they do, they will not only be more sure of happiness in life, but also of success.

It is almost an axiom that what a man likes to do he does well, and what he dislikes to do he is apt to do indifferently or poorly.

Almost everyone has read of the unanimous election of Mrs. Ella Flegg Young, over the heads of five clever men, to the splendid position of superintendent of schools in the city of Chicago. No woman ought to be able to read that without a thrill of pride.

And Mrs. Young ascribes much of her success to the fact that she loves her work with all her heart. "What a child is to the mother—what a maiden is to her lover—all of this, and more, is the work of education to Mrs. Young," says someone who interviewed her.

There are two ways to yoke oxen. One is to put the yoke on the horns—the other to put it about the neck. The pulling power of oxen is in their necks and naturally the horn-yoked ox is about half as efficient as the other.

Men or women doing work for which they are not naturally adapted are like the horn-yoked oxen. They have only half the pulling power they might have.

I especially advise women who are choosing an occupation, to allow their minds to seek beyond the few conventional paths that women's steps are so apt to turn into.

Such paths are overcrowded and just as long as women follow each other closely into them without consulting their own individual ability the way will be crowded and the pay will be poor.

The women among my acquaintance who have followed less trodden paths are those who have made the greatest successes. Among these, one is doing costume designing for a large department store. Another buys supplies and plans the menu at a great hospital. Another has the business and artistic management of a group of girls who pose for advertisements. Another earns a large salary as a government chemist.

Do not be afraid of working with your hands. Many of us are born with brains in our finger tips, and that is just as much a thing to be proud of as if all our brains were in our heads and our hands were stupid.

Did you ever hear of the "Mary Elizabeth" candles? They are homemade candles, famous all over the country, because a girl who had a talent for making candy preferred being a famous candy cook to a mediocre teacher or stenographer.

Any work which is done as well as you can do it is dignified. It makes no difference whether you dig a trench, or sell shoes, or paint pictures, or cook dinners. If it is what you like to do best and are best fitted to do, and if you do it as well as you possibly can, your work is dignified.

Never forget.

"Who sweeps a room as for Thy laws Makes that and th' action fine."

Forty Years Ago

Janesville Daily Gazette, September 2, 1869.—Accident.—A little daughter of Mr. William McIntyre fell this afternoon from a wooden building on Main street, where it had been allowed to play. Fortunately the child struck on the back of some horses hitched to a post, and from thence rolled to the ground. This opportubreak of the fall prevented serious injury to the little one.

The Promenade Concert.—The entertainment given by the band last evening did not have as full an attendance as we had hoped would be given by our citizens. However those who did attend are unanimous in voting it one of the most pleasant affairs of the season, and those who failed to be present have missed an entertainment of no ordinary merit. We trust the members of the band will follow up their original program and give us the other two halves of the series, which we hope will be better patronized.

A Good Thing.—The sand bank in the park just below the new court house is vanishing at the hands of the new contractors for laying down Nicholson pavement. They need it to form a good road bed, and the county needs to get rid of it, therefore the thing is mutual to a certain extent, and the county has to pay but a trifling amount for this important grading.

Base Ball.—The Mutual Base Ball Club leave for Madison this evening at 9 o'clock to play a match game with the Capital City Club tomorrow afternoon. Those wishing to take a trip to Madison will have an excellent chance, only half fare.

Rented.—We understand that Mr. E. L. Wright has rented the new music hall in Myers Block for one year from the time of its completion. The hall is to be a handsome one of a capacity to seat comfortably one thousand persons. It will be ready for occupancy this fall.

A GREAT BLAZE OF CONVICTION SWEEPING OVER JANESVILLE.

The more people know of the new remedy, Root Juice, the more convinced are they of the wonderful merits of the discovery. Scores of people have bought it at the Reliable Drug Co's drug store, and after using it a short while they are so loud in praise of it that their neighbors are going to the store in such crowds for the medicine it is hard to keep it in stock. Testimonials are being piled upon testimonials from every direction and many are buying the juice because it is doing so much good for some neighbor or relative. Root Juice has certainly created a great sensation over in Ft. Wayne, Ind. Mr. John Spratt said: "I have suffered a long time with a very painful kidney and bladder trouble, had to get up every fifteen or twenty minutes during the night. I would sometimes so suffer with my back and kidneys that I would have to walk the floor for hours at a time. I began taking Root Juice when it was first introduced here, and after taking it a short time I wish to say for the benefit of my friends and others who suffer as I did, that I am now free from all pain and rest well at night. I am rapidly regaining strength and am much improved in every way." Mr. Oscar Green, of the same point, Ill. No. 3, said: "Before taking Root Juice I had very bad stomach trouble of long standing. After eating a meal of food I had knots or rocks in the pit of my stomach. I bloated very much and had a burning in my stomach that pained me very much, and caused me to be very nervous, but the first dose of Root Juice I took soothed my stomach and caused me to feel better and after taking the great medicine a short while I can eat anything without suffering for it." The people at the drug store are glad to give any information within their power in relation to the remedy. The juice is now on sale for $1 a bottle or three bottles for $2.50.

Walk ten miles daily and you won't need laxatives. But indoor people all need candy Cascarets. They exercise the bowels in a gentle, natural way—not like harsh cathartics. Have them always with you—take one when you need it.

Logothetti did not come out to Versailles that afternoon, because he was plentifully endowed with tact where women were concerned, and he applied all the knowledge and skill he had to the elusive purpose of pleasing Margaret. But before dinner he telephoned and asked to speak with her,
and this she could not possibly refuse, and the day had seemed long, and besides, she did not wish for his presence who wanted something—that in-scrutable, mysterious something which disturbed her and made her feel uncomfortable when she felt it, but which she missed when she did not see him for a day or two.

"How are you?" asked his voice, and he ran on without waiting for an answer. "I hope you are not very tired after crossing yesterday. I came by Boulogne—decent of me, wasn't it?
You must be sick of seeing me all the time, so I shall give you a rest for a day or two. Telephone whenever you think you can bear the sight of me again, and I'll be with you in 35 minutes. I shall not stir from home in this baking weather. If you think I'm in mischief you're quite mistaken, dear lady, for I'm up to my chin in work."

"I envy you," Margaret said, when he paused at last. "I've nothing on earth to do, and the piano here is out of tune. But you're quite right, I don't want to see you a little bit, and I'm not jealous, nor suspicious, nor anything disagreeable. So there!"

"How nice of you!"

"I'm very nice," Margaret answered with laughing emphasis. "I know it.
What sort of work are you doing? It's only idle curiosity, so don't tell me if you would rather not! Have you got a new railway in Brazil, or an overland route to the other side of the world?"

"Nothing so easy! I'm brushing up my Tartar."

"Brushing up what? I didn't hear."

"Tartar—the Tartar language—Tartar
—he began to spell the word.

"Yes, I hear now," interrupted Margaret. "Just what in the world is the use of knowing it? You must be awfully hard up for something to do!"

"You can be understood from Constantinople to the Pacific ocean if you can speak Tartar," Logothetti answered in a matter-of-fact tone.

"I dare say! But you're not going to travel from Constantinople to the Pacific ocean?"

"I might. One never can tell what one may like to do."

"Oh, if it's because Tartar is useful against the bites of sharks," answered Margaret, quoting Alice, "learn it by all means!"

"Besides, there are all sorts of people in Paris. I'm sure there must be some Tartars. I might meet one, and it would be amusing to be able to talk to him."

"Nonsense! Why should you ever meet a Tartar? How absurd you are!"

"There's one with me now—close beside me, at my elbow."

"Don't be silly, or I'll ring off!"

"If you don't believe me, listen!"

He said something in a language Margaret did not understand, and another voice answered him at once in the same tongue. Margaret started slightly and bent her brows with a puzzled and displeased look.

"Is that your teacher?" she asked with more interest in her tone than she had yet betrayed.

"Yes."

"I begin to understand. Do you mind telling me how old she is?"

"It's not 'she,' it's a young man. I don't know how old he is. I'll ask him if you like."

Again she heard him speak a few incomprehensible words, which were answered very briefly in the same tongue.

"He tells me he is 20," Logothetti said. "He's a good-looking young fellow. How is Mrs. Rushmore? I forgot to ask."

"She's quite well, thank you. But I should like to know—"

"Will you be so very kind as to remember me to her, and to say that I hope to find her at home the day after to-morrow?"

"Certainly. Come to-morrow if you like. But please tell me how you happened to pick up that young Tartar.
It sounds so interesting! He has such a sweet voice."

There was no reply to this ques-

Locomotor Ataxia

"I suffered intensely from Locomotor Ataxia, and Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills gave me great relief. I have taken them for a long time, and some people say they are not good for me. Well, maybe not, but they relieve my pain and I will take them as long as they continue to do so. Anti-Pain and Nerve and Liver Pills keep me up and I assure you I am thankful for that."

Many persons who suffer constantly from chronic diseases, find great relief by the use of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and after several years use, say that they have in no way injured them or created a habit,
way injured them or created a habit,
way injured them or created a habit,
way injured them or created a habit,

thankful that she had torn up her letter to Lady Maud. She was not prepared to admit, even now, that Konstantin was the ideal she should have chosen for a husband, and whom she had been describing from imagination when she had suddenly stopped writing. But, on the other hand, the mere thought that he had perhaps been amusing himself in the society of another woman all yesterday afternoon made her so angry that she took refuge in trying to believe that he had spoken the truth and that she had really been mistaken about the voice.

Since you are admitting that I need not even try to believe it was a man whom I heard speaking."

"To tell the truth, I have some suspicions about that myself," answered Logothetti.

"I have a great many," Margaret laughed rather harshly. "And you believe as if you wanted me to have more. Who is this eastern woman?"

"Come, be frank. She is some one from Constantinople, isn't she? A Pamphile like yourself, I dare say—an old friend who is in Paris for a few days, and would not pass through without seeing you. Say so, for heaven's sake, and don't make such a mystery about it!"

"How very ingenious women are!"
observed the Greek. "If I had thought of it I might have told you that story through the telephone yesterday. But I didn't."

Margaret was rapidly becoming exasperated, her eyes flashed, her firm young cheeks reddened handsomely, and her generous lips made scornful curves.

"Are you trying to quarrel with me?"

"The words had a force ring; he glanced at her quickly and saw how

He Became Very Gloomy and Thoughtful.

well her look agreed with her tone.
She was very angry.

"If I were not afraid of boring you," he said with quiet gravity, "I would tell you the whole story, but—" he pretended to hesitate.

He heard her harsh little laugh at once.

"Your worst enemy could not accuse you of being a bore!" she retorted. "Oh, no! It's something quite different from boredom that I feel, I assure you!"

"I wish I thought that you cared for me enough to be jealous," Logothetti said earnestly.

"Jealous?"

No one can describe the tone of indignant contempt in which a thoroughly jealous woman declaims the least thought of jealousy with a single word; a man must have heard it, and remember what it is like, and most men have. Logothetti knew it well, and at the sound he put on an expression of meek innocence which would have done credit to a cat that had just eaten a canary.

"I'm so sorry," he cried in a voice like a child's. "I didn't mean to make you angry. I was only wishing aloud.
Please forgive me!"

"If your idea of caring for a woman is to make her jealous—"

SWEEP BY WALL OF WATER

Cloudburst Starts Work of Destruc-

Search Debris for Bodies of Missing Persons.

Rawhide, Nev., Sept. 2.—Swept by a ten-foot wall of water, following a cloudburst, Squatter Town, a settlement near Rawhide, was practically wiped off the map. The torrent destroyed 130 buildings and it is feared several persons lost their lives.

The cloud broke on the summit of the low hills to the north of the camp.
In a few moments a three-foot wall of water was pouring down the slope.
Houses float down Street.

Several structures were torn from their foundations and floated down the street, while the crest of the flood was covered with furniture, animals and all sorts of debris.

Gathering force as it poured down the channel, the flood swept into and over Squatter Town, half a mile further down. The water formed a wall ten feet high as it crashed into the structures.

Makes 600 Homeless.

Before the wave had passed 500 persons were homeless and their property piled in a tangled heap in the basin at the foot of National hill.
Large parties of workmen are searching for bodies in the debris. Although several persons are reported missing, there is no confirmation of the report that lives were lost when the ten-foot wall of water resulting from a cloudburst in the hills north of this place swept over a section of the town. The property loss will exceed a quarter of a million dollars.

PITTSBURG MINE DISPUTE IS SETTLED BY LEWIS

National President Ignores District Officials and Orders Men to Return to Work.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 2.—Thomas L.
Lewis, president, and the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America have settled with the operators of the Pittsburg district the dispute over powder affecting 18,000 employees, of whom 7,000 have been on strike for more than a week.

A notice was posted in the mines that in this district telling the miners that the recent order of the coal companies that black powder must be used in mining coal is rescinded for the present.

To secure this concession on the part of the operators President Lewis appointed a committee from the miners' organization, which went to Wilkesbarre today to confer with Chief Mine Inspector James E. Roderick of Pennsylvania, asking that a thorough investigation of the use of black or "safety" powder be made by the state.

The state authorities ordered the use of this powder, but the miners contend that it shatters the coal to such an extent that their earnings are greatly decreased.

The district officials of the miners' union took no part in the conference, owing to the differences existing between them and the national board.

Another victory was recorded by the Schoonville strikers when it was reported that the members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen employed on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad had refused to bring any more strike-breakers to the Pressed Steel Car Company's plant.

A committee representing the train-men called at the strikers' headquarters at McKees Rocks, and after the conference Chairman Wise of the strikers' executive committee stated positively that no more imported men will be transported over the Fort Wayne route.

OYSTER SEASON WAS OPENED YESTERDAY

Shell Fish from the Eastern Waters Are Beginning to Arrive in the Local Markets.

September 1, the day on which all oyster boats and barge companies are discarded, is the day officially set for the opening of the oyster season. Clam bakes and clam chowders are all right for the summer months, but who does not relish more the oyster, raw or cooked, or garlicked so as to tickle the appetite of the epicure? The season for this brother to the clam is during the winter months of the year. There is a saying which many believe in—that it is safe to eat the oyster only during the months which have in their name the letter 'P'—that is, from September to May. During the months of May, June, July and August, the advice says that the meat is poisonous, but a better reason for its non-use is that if it were not for the brief period when the oyster fishing is prohibited in order to allow the bivalves to propagate the supply would soon be exhausted.

There are several varieties of oysters but the standard kind are the Bluepoints and the New York counts. Mr. Oyster is not an ordinary shell inhabitant. In zoology he is known by the high-sounding name of "Pecten irradians." There are seven to twelve all over the world, it takes of world-wide distribution. Natural beds of oyster grow on stony and shelly bottoms of depths varying from 3 to 20 fathoms and extend in water with less than 3 per cent of salt.

Oyster Industry The United States is the chief seat of the oyster industry. France is a close rival and the other countries in the order of their importance are Great Britain, Holland, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Spain, Portugal, Denmark, Russia and Norway. Some idea of the enormity of the industry may be gained from a few figures relating to the culture of the oyster in the United States.

The products of American oyster fisheries yield in value three times that of cod fisheries and six times that of whale fisheries. Figures available indicate that more than 50,000 persons are annually employed in the oyster fishing alone and the yield more than 25,000,000 bushels represents a value to the fishermen of some ten million dollars. The rise in value of that supply from producer to retailer is over seven million dollars. Eighty per cent of the supply is confined to the Chesapeake bay. Oyster culture is becoming a science. Its fishing is subject to restrictions and regulations as the hunting of game and fishing in other states but laws common to all states prohibit fishing in summer, at night and with the use of steamers.

The method of gathering oysters is simple and much the same in all parts of the world, the implements in use being dipnet or tongs with long handles, rakes, which are simply many pronged rippers, and dredges. The character of the vessel or boat used depends in a measure upon the means of the fisherman and the constancy of his employment and is also influenced by the character of the oyster ground, its location and the governing laws. There are various qualities of oysters ranging from the blue-backed variety that costs the hungry consumer half a dollar, or even a dollar, for a dozen on the half shell or the same number rolled in crumbs and sized in fat, down to the almost mindless squill, plucked before its time and found swimming alone in a bowl of hot water and milk at a church social. The price of the latter is 25 cents per bowl of broth and one so-called oyster.

But the season is on and what care we for the rank of the oyster so long as he—or she—comes our way with proper accompaniment, raw, steamed, scalloped or broiled or otherwise made fit for our fancy.
